Health Sciences Graduate Programs and Career Paths: The Perspectives of Black Faculty

Wednesday, November 18, 2020
5-6 p.m. EST

Curious about graduate programs and careers in the health sciences?

During this virtual panel session, faculty members will share insights into career paths—including their own graduate school journeys, scholarly inspirations, important mentors, and professional accomplishments and collaborations—as well as the graduate and professional programs their schools offer.

The panelists will also offer advice to undergraduates about researching and applying to graduate and professional programs.

Find more information at provost.pitt.edu/graduate-events.

Featured Speakers

Bertheory Deslouches, MD, PhD
Assistant Professor, Environmental and Occupational Health
Graduate School of Public Health

Bernard Rousseau, PhD, MMHC, CCC-SLP, ASHA Fellow
Associate Dean for Equity, Inclusion, and Community Engagement
School of Health and Rehabilitation Sciences
Professor and Chair
Department of Communication Science and Disorders

Christine Wankiiri-Hale, DMD
Associate Dean for Student Affairs
School of Dental Medicine

Moderator

Lesha Greene
Scholar Mentor
Pitt Honors College